

DESCRIPTION

Concepts and practice of narrative, documentary and experimental media production focusing on use of video and new media tools. Students will utilize basic video, sound, lighting, and computer software as they develop short cinematic projects in Ireland. Completed work will be exhibited publicly and hosted on a Cinema Ireland video website. Students will be required to keep a written journal of their experiences and to complete several short essays.

LOGISTICS

Formal class meetings are 10am-1pm (see schedule) for lectures on film theory and demonstrations of practice. Students will work individually or in pairs/teams on film projects, including planning, researching, writing/scripting, storyboarding, interviewing, location shooting, editing and other production work during most afternoons. Evenings will include opportunities to review daily rushes and watch other works, leading to discussion and evaluation. Classes and evening discussion will include visits from local filmmakers and scholars of Irish history and culture. Time will also be scheduled for individual evaluation and consultation with students.
